“Noah And The Robots”
(Genesis 9:8-17)

When God created us, He gave us the _____ to decide our own _____.

The Scriptures are quite clear. God is _____. We are _____.

We are like God in that we can _____ and _____, and we can _____ what we think and dream about.

We are free to _____ all we can be, or we are free to _____ ourselves and everything good in our lives.

God did not want to share the world with a bunch of _____ where He would always be _____ the strings.

He wanted creatures He could _____ and who would _____ Him in return.

One of the great fears that bright people have about the future is the rapid development of so-called _____ intelligence.

Artificial intelligence refers to the development of _____ that are able to do things normally done by _____.

Normally when we think of intelligent machines, we think of _____.

Our point: It's always _____ to give any new creation free will – the ability to _____ what is right or wrong.

Those creatures might _____ against you. Yet God took that _____.

Whether from our _____ nature or from pure stupidity, we are certainly a _____ to our Creator.

(over)

The story of _____ and the _____ is the culmination of that disappointment.

An important thing: God allowed a _____ to remain.

God never gives up _____ on His beloved people!

Francis Thompson called God the “_____ of Heaven.”

Regardless of how far we run away from Him and His love, God remains in _____!

Why did God choose to save Noah? He was the only _____ man left in the world.

The waters recede, and God puts a _____ in the heavens as a sign of His eternal _____!

God makes a _____ with humanity.

On the cross of _____ He makes a new covenant, that says that those who seek to have Christ's _____ in their life will never die!

We're not _____. We have _____ will.

Sometimes we stumble and _____. But God _____ gives up on us!

Remember that the next time you see a rainbow.

God's love will never fail you!
